Author: Anna Szawara, University of Illinois

Abstract:

It is always a challenge to find materials that are suitable for mixed groups of advanced language (Heritage and Non-Heritage). Selecting cultural topics that structure the course may be one approach to accommodating mixed levels of proficiency. Topics from the spring 2018 course included legends and folklore, village/country life, Communism, minorities, women, and media and Internet language. Select materials, class plans, and assignments will be presented.
